Teacher Student Relationship

- Mission

- We believe that students of all backgrounds deserve the opportunity to lead, participate, and get the guidance and support they need from their respective teachers.
- We believe students are capable. When students feel that their teachers are supportive, trustworthy people, they tend to create a connection with their teacher and start to see their teachers as someone who is there to protect them and give them all the chance to enhance their learning and in the same time behave well.

Student-teacher relationship

- Pianta (1999) defines the student-teacher relationship, as “emotions-based experiences that emerge out of teachers’ on-going interactions with their students.”

- Students' ability to connect with their teachers is one attribute that can make a great difference in students' learning achievement.

Need of Teacher Student Relationships

- A good and supportive relationship is needed to create safe environments and give students confidence to work without pressure and become motivated to learn.
- Students feel motivated and stimulated to learn and actively collaborate with the teachers when the classroom is running in a safe and supportive environment.

- The relationship between teachers and students affects the quality of students' motivation to learn and classroom learning experiences.
- Effective relationships between teacher and students make students feel comfortable and free to interact in the classroom and improve their academic skills.

- A teacher who cares about their students transmits knowledge affectively and has a good interaction with them.
- The emotional link makes the students feel comfortable in front of the teacher and class, which is essential the student's success or failure.

- When students have supportive relationships with their teacher, they feel more motivated and engaged in the learning process.
- in a safe environment where students can feel engaged and motivated to learn, share their experiences, and demonstrate their competence.

- teachers who hold high expectations of students in terms of their levels of achievement and their social behaviors in the classroom can affect student motivation and engagement
- A teacher can use numerous strategies to manage their classroom and offer students the opportunity to build their knowledge and also to prevent misbehavior in classroom.

- A good classroom management allows the students to behave well and be motivated and focused enhancing their interaction with the whole class.
- Research in the area of motivation indicates that the quality of teacher student relationships affects students' emotional and behavioral engagement in school

- A good classroom environment is important because the social-emotional climate a teacher establishes with students will provide opportunities to see themselves as capable, worthy and confident members of the classroom community and make them feel part of the learning process.

- Trickett and Moos 1973 state that the classroom environment consists of three overarching dimensions: the ability for students to develop relationships with their instructors and peers, the extent to which students engage in learning activities, and the general structure and order of the classroom provided by the instructor.

Developing Positive Teacher-Student Relationships

- 1. They provide structure

The majority of students respond positively to a structured environment. Teachers should explain clear expectations to their students. Rules and regulations must be sensible and constantly reinforced.

- 2. They teach with enthusiasm and passion
- 3. They display a positive attitude
- 4. They make learning fun

The creation of an enjoyable learning environment encourages student attendance and participation.

- 5. They show an interest in your student's lives outside the classroom
- 6. They treat students with respect.
A teacher who respects their students will experience reciprocal respect from their students.
- 7. They create a secure and safe environment for students.
- 8. They Give students meaningful feedback
